

INT. LARRY'S CAR

PIPER and LARRY pull into the prison guest parking lot. A guard drives by in his truck, they roll down the window.

GUARD
No visiting today.

PIPER
Hi, um, I'm here to surrender.

GUARD
Oh. Okay, then.

The guard drives on.

PIPER
Did he look surprised to you? When I said that I was here to surrender? Didn't he look surprised? Like "what the hell is she doing here?"

LARRY
I didn't notice.

PIPER
Well, he looked surprised to me.

Distraught, she unfolds the sun shade, looks in the mirror.

PIPER (CONT'D)
I look like shit. My eyes are all puffy.

LARRY
You're worried about how you look?

PIPER
Well, they're gonna know that I was crying. It's a sign of weakness. You can't show any weakness. That's what all of the books said.

LARRY
Oh, sweetie...

PIPER
Don't call me sweetie.

LARRY
Oh... Leonard.

PIPER
That's better.

She looks at her engagement ring, then takes it off.

PIPER (CONT'D)
I can't take it with me.

LARRY
Oh. Oh, okay. Right.

Larry takes the ring and starts to put it in his coat pocket.

PIPER
What are you doing?

LARRY What?

PIPER
You can't put that in your pocket.
It's gonna end up at the bottom of the washing machine.

LARRY
Ok. Umm... Where would you like me to put it then, Piper?

PIPER
Up your ass.

LARRY
There's no room. Apparently, my head's already up there.

PIPER
I'm sorry.

LARRY
It's okay. You know what? I'm gonna put it in my wallet okay? And when I get home, I will put it in your jewelry box. Until I'm short on rent, then I may hock it. But I'll try to get it back before you're out.

She smiles. He holds her hand. One last moment.

PIPER
We should go.

She takes a deep breath, and they get out of the car.
